

Warranty Conditions for New Zealand

What is a warranty?

We thank you for purchasing this Fujifilm product. Your product has been manufactured to precise standards, with rigid quality control through every part of the manufacturing process. When you bought your Fujifilm product, you were given a warranty, which means for a certain period after purchase, any manufacturing defect will be repaired free-of-charge. Our products are extremely reliable, but like all complex equipment, it is possible that faults can develop over time.

How long does my warranty last?

The standard warranty period for Digital Cameras bought in New Zealand is 12 months. The warranty period begins from the date printed on your shop or Web receipt.

What do I need to claim a free repair under warranty?

All you will need is the receipt that you were given by the shop or Website you bought it from. It's very important that you look after your receipt, as without this evidence you cannot claim your warranty. You do not need to present a Warranty Card to claim your warranty.

What is not covered by the warranty?

The warranty does not cover normal wear and tear, scratching, abrasions or cosmetic damage. More specifically, it does not cover damage caused by:

- Any misuse or improper handling (the camera should be protected if carried in a bag or a case)
- Dropping or knocking the product
- A repair, modification or cleaning done by anyone other than Fujifilm or a Fujifilm Authorised Service Centre
- Leaking or exhausted batteries
- Improper storage (extremes of temperature or humidity)
- The entry of water, sand, dust etc into the camera

How do I claim a repair under warranty?

You can either take or send the product to the shop or Website you bought it from or direct to Fujifilm or a Fujifilm Authorised Repair Centre. Subject to any rights available to you under any applicable statute you must meet the cost for sending the product back to shop, Website or to Fujifilm. The cost of returning the product to you will be met by the shop or by Fujifilm.

What happens if I bought the camera in a different country from where I live?

The normal policy is for the Service Centre in the country in which you live to repair the camera for you without charge but, please contact the repair centre to check. Obviously, the shop or Web receipt will not be from your home country.

What happens if I have lost my shop receipt?

If you have lost your receipt, you will have no evidence that the product is within its warranty period, so regrettably you will have to pay for the repair.

How do I go about getting a repair under warranty?

You will need to return your product, with a copy of the shop or Web receipt, to the shop or Website you bought it from or direct to Fujifilm or to a Fujifilm Authorised Service Centre. Make sure that:

- the product is packed with a sufficient protection to prevent any further damage. It is your responsibility to ensure that the product arrives safely.
- you give us your name, address, telephone number and e-mail address (if you have one) – otherwise we cannot return the product to you!
- Just send us back the product. Please do not send us any accessories, like media cards, batteries, software CDs or manuals.
